My dear Miss Hebard:-

I am in receipt of your letter saying you are going to send me a photograph of the original bill of December 10, 1869, granting to the women of your State the right of suffrage. Although the picture has not yet arrived, I am writing to say that no Christmas present which I may receive will be more welcome than the photograph referred to. I shall be not only delighted but extremely grateful to you for it and I appreciate the kindly thought which prompts it.

I have not seen your article on "The First Woman Jury", nor am I familiar with the Journal of American History. If you will kindly send me a copy, I shall deem it a great favor and value it accordingly.

Thanking you in advance for the photograph and copy of the article, and with the season's compliments, believe me,

Very sincerely yours

Oliver H. P. Belmont

Dear Miss Hebard:-

One of the most charmingly written and delightfully interesting articles I have read lately is your story of the first woman's jury in the current edition of the Journal of American History. Its educational value is beyond estimate, because the public are woefully ignorant of the fact that women ever sat on a jury until very recently. Following the enfranchisement of the Washington women and their being drawn for jury service, the press of the whole world commented on it as being the first time in history when women were permitted to act in this capacity, and we were kept busy calling their attention to their mistake in this connection.

Thanking you for your courtesy, and assuring you of my interest in everything that is written on the subject of woman suffrage, believe me

Very sincerely,

Oliver H. P. Belmont

The picture came in due time and I am having it framed to hang in the headquarters of the Political E.A.
